These ageless stars seem to be defying time! Is it surgery or good genes?

SUBTLE CHANGES

Although Halle Berry claims she hasn't had any plastic surgery yet, NYC dermatologist Dr. Neil Sadick believes the 45-year-old star probably started "rejuvenating procedures" (like Botox, fillers and laser resurfacing treatments) years ago — making it less conspicuous that she's had any work done.

LUCKED OUT

Jennifer Aniston, 42, says aging naturally is "beautiful" and calls Botox "awful." Hmm, but she's still managing to age in reverse. What gives? "Some people just have great genes," attests Dr. David Bank, before adding, "Her glowing skin could be from some sort of chemical peel, though."

FAN OF INJECTABLES?

How does Sandra Bullock look this good at 47? Well, according to Sandra, it's all about "experimenting with new creams." Yeah, NYC dermatologist Dr. Eric Schweiger doesn't buy that either, explaining, "Not only does it appear here that Sandra has had a Botox brow-lift many times, but she hasn't lost any volume in her face, which makes me believe she's likely had dermal filler in her cheeks and mid-face."

SKIN SECRET

"Most 41-year-olds need maintenance," says NYC plastic surgeon Dr. Norman Rowe about Uma Thurman's wrinkle-free appearance. "Based on these pictures, I believe her flawless skin is the result of continual Botox injections."

Dr. Neil Sadick, Board Certified Dermatologist in NYC and Great Neck, N.Y.; Dr. Eric Schweiger, Group Skin Care, available at Regency; Dr. Norman M. Rowe, MD, Board Certified Plastic Surgeon in NYC; Dr. Eric Schweiger, MD, and founder of Schweiger Dermatology in NYC; and Dr. David Bank, board-certified clinical professor at Columbia Presbyterian in NYC. Don't head west.
